

ANGELICA ZORDAN

PhD student in Linguistics

PROFILE

My research interests revolve around psycholinguistics and language processing within mono- and multilingual populations in typical and atypical conditions.

My PhD project aims to check the relationship between developmental dyslexia (DD) and compounding by accessing the online processing (using eye-tracking technology) and production of Italian compounds within Italian dyslexic adolescents. Finally, I will analyze how Italian as L1 influences comprehension and production of English compounds in learners of English as L2 affected by DD.
