SOFIA RIGHETTI

PERSONAL PROFILE

PhD Candidate in Education at the University of Verona.
Holds a Master's Degree in Philosophical Sciences, awarded with highest honors (110/110 cum laude).

Educator, trainer, consultant, and intersectional feminist activist. My scholarly and professional expertise lies in Feminist Disability Studies, Crip Theory, Queer Studies, and Gender Studies. I provide consultancy and training on DEIA (Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, Accessibility) for organizations and individuals. Through teaching, research, activism, and public engagement, my work seeks to render transfeminism and the discourses surrounding the rights of marginalized, oppressed, and non-normative bodies accessible to all, with the overarching aim of advancing disability justice.

My practice also involves community care through decolonial spiritual activism. I investigate the figure of the witch as a feminist cultural archetype—one that embodies divergence and resistance against normative patriarchy.

Productions

Streghe Podcast

Role: Author, Producer, and Host

Platform: Spotify

Publication Period: 2020 – Present

Description: Streghe is an innovative project that explores the figure of the Witch from feminist, esoteric, socio-political, queer, and spiritual perspectives, featuring scholars, academics, and experts.

In each episode, Sofia Righetti introduces a new theme, bringing to light the figure most marginalized and oppressed by patriarchal society: those who rebel, the outsiders, the “bad” ones who are feared yet fascinating because they have never bowed their heads.

Streghe is available on all streaming platforms and as a subtitled video podcast on YouTube.

Stregoneria e Attivismo

Role: Author, Producer, and Host

Platform: Patreon

Publication Period: 2020 – Present

Description: A podcast exploring the intersection of transfeminist spiritual practices and care within activism, aimed at those interested in the connection between spirituality, feminism, queer identity, and political engagement.

This space offers reflections, reading recommendations, and tools to awaken one’s most rebellious part—both for newcomers and seasoned practitioners.

A journey through witchcraft as a practice of personal and collective transformation, to build the power necessary to change the world together.

Bad Crip Girl Podcast

Role: Author, Producer, and Host

Platform: Patreon

Publication Period: 2020 – Present

Description: A podcast dedicated to Disability Studies, Feminist Disability Studies, and Crip Studies, and how they intersect with other social realities.

Righetti explores key themes and current events through a transfeminist and crip lens, offering book and TV series reviews, reflections on representation, and critical analyses of contemporary issues.

Guest

Episode 72 – Feminist and Queer Witchcraft on the podcast Palinsesto Femminista

Role: Guest Speaker

Platform: Spotify

Publication Date: 26 October 2022

Description: What does it mean to define oneself as a witch in 2022? Who were witches then, and who are they now? Can a practice born from the margins become a safe space for marginalized people? The answer is yes – and Sofia Righetti tells us why.

Talking about Ableism and Spirituality with Sofia Righetti on the podcast Lato E

Role: Guest Speaker

Platform: Spotify

Publication Date: 13 November 2023

Description: Have you ever considered that an overly spiritual approach to disability can slip into ableism? In this episode, Sofia Righetti – activist and educator in Disability Studies – shares her story and explains how witchcraft and ritual practices have become a safe, judgment-free haven. The result is a powerful combination of political struggle and the tenderness of mindful spiritual practice. Spoiler: yes, they can coexist.

Episode 5 – Sofia Righetti on the Verona Deep Podcast

Role: Guest Speaker

Platform: Spotify

Publication Date: 10 March 2023

Description: Sofia Righetti is one of the most determined activists we have ever met. Together, we delve into her legal victory in the lawsuit against the Verona Arena and explore key issues in the fight against ableism.

Episode 24 – Feminism and Ableism on the podcast Palinsesto Femminista

Role: Guest Speaker

Platform: Spotify

Publication Date: 9 September 2020

Description: Feminism claims the right for women not to be seen solely as bodies. But what happens when your body has never been seen at all?

The answer can be found in the Feminist Disability Studies, which seek to fill the void left by ableist feminism for far too long. Sofia Righetti explores these themes in depth.

Episode 11 – CRIP PRIDE with Sofia Righetti on the podcast Queer Scream

Role: Guest Speaker

Platform: Spotify

Publication Date: 5 March 2021

Description: The LGBTQIA+ community is not the only one excluded from mainstream representation. Many other communities face similar treatment, where representation is scarce and often steeped in ableist stereotypes. Together with hosts Mattia and Enrico, Sofia Righetti dives into an analysis of how disabled people are represented in popular media.

Evviva le streghe! (Long Live the Witches!) on the podcast Solo se ti rende felice

Role: Guest Speaker

Platform: Spotify

Publication Date: 7 October 2021

Description: A conversation on witchcraft and spiritual activism with Sofia Righetti, intersectional feminist and disability rights advocate, educator, and scholar of Disability and Gender Studies.
